

'Hi I'm Georgia. I work as a visual artist and use skills developed over many years, through trial and error, in my practice. In my design process, I usually start with a finished goal in my head and develop a set of experimental ideas which I think may enable me to achieve this goal. Very often, during the process of achieving this, I get inspired by discoveries along the way and go on to produce parallel ideas as a consequence. Many lessons are learnt and potential designs discovered in the process of creating one!

I approach Creative Learning projects in a very similar way. Sometimes it all works out the way we had imagined it, sometimes it doesn't but we gain so much, along the way. I like to enable individuals to develop skills and confidence by helping them to develop their own ideas and approaches. The fun is the process!
